Case No. 16-cv-809-BAS(JLB)

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO REMAND

[ECF No. 6]

24 On May 24, 2013, Plaintiff Milena Garcia commenced this wage-and-hour 25 class action in San Diego Superior Court against Defendants Task Ventures, LLC 26 d/b/a Sports Clips, Terry Klinker, and Pinnacle PEO Corporation ("Pinnacle"). In 27 July 2014, Ms. Garcia filed an amended complaint to add Sports Clips, Inc. as a 28 defendant, and then in January 2016, Ms. Garcia filed a Second Amended Complaint ("SAC"), the operative complaint, to add Albert Martinez as a defendant. Mr.
Martinez subsequently removed this action to federal court. Ms. Garcia now moves

1 to remand this action to state court. Mr. Martinez opposes.

2 The Court finds this motion suitable for determination on the papers submitted 3 and without oral argument. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 78(b); Civ. L.R. 7.1(d)(1). For the 4 following reasons, the Court GRANTS Ms. Garcia’s motion to remand.

5 6 I. BACKGROUND¹

7 Ms. Garcia is a resident of San Diego, California and worked as a non-exempt 8 employee of Task Ventures and Pinnacle in San Diego from June 2011 to October 9 2012. (SAC ¶¶ 13, 25.) Mr. Klinker is the owner, president, and manager of Task 10 Ventures. (SAC ¶ 17.) And Mr. Martinez is the owner and CEO of Pinnacle. (SAC ¶ 11 18.) Ms. Garcia brings this class action on behalf of all current or former employees 12 of Pinnacle and/or Task Ventures who work or have worked as hair stylists in the 13 State of California since May 24, 2009. (SAC ¶¶ 83-87.)

14 Hair stylists are non-exempt employees eligible for minimum wages, overtime 15 wages, meal and rest breaks, and other protections of the California Labor Code and 16 Wage Order of the Industrial Welfare Commissions (“IWC Wage Order”). (SAC ¶ 17 26.) It is alleged that Defendants failed to provide Ms. Garcia and its hair stylists the 18 required benefits and protections of California wage-and-hour laws. (SAC ¶ 27.) 19 These failures include, among other things, Defendants not paying its employees the 20 proper rate of pay for overtime hours, providing adequate meal periods, timely paying 21 overtime wages, and maintaining accurate itemized wage statements. (SAC ¶¶ 33-22 43, 45-52, 96-101, 109-12, 115, 123-27)

23 On May 24, 2013, Ms. Garcia commenced this action against Task Ventures, 24 Mr. Klinker, and Pinnacle in the San Diego Superior Court. (Roysdon Decl. Ex. 1.)
25 A First Amended Complaint was then filed on July 7, 2014, making “no change[s] 26

27
28 ¹ For the purposes of this order, the Court collectively refers to Task Ventures, Pinnacle, Mr. Klinker, and Mr. Martinez as “Defendants.”

1 to [Ms. Garcia's] substantive allegations, other than adding a cause of action against 2 Sport Clips." (Id. ¶ 7, Ex. 2.)

3 In April 2015, the parties attempted to resolve this action in mediation, which 4 was ultimately unsuccessful. (Roysdon Decl. ¶ 8; McCarter Decl. ¶¶ 15-16.) Though 5 the circumstances that produced an unsuccessful mediation are disputed, Ms. Garcia 6 eventually dismissed Sport Clips as a defendant. (Roysdon Decl. ¶ 8.)

7 After obtaining leave from the court, Ms. Garcia filed her SAC on February 8, 8 2016, "which added Defendant Martinez as a defendant to the PAGA representative 9 claim and did not change Plaintiff's substantive allegations, other than to delete the 10 cause of action against Sport Clips." (Roysdon Decl. ¶ 9.) According to Ms. Garcia, 11 Mr. Martinez, the owner and CEO of Pinnacle, "has controlled Pinnacle's 12 involvement in this litigation at all times, by, for example, assisting Pinnacle with 13 preparing its discovery responses and requiring that Pinnacle obtain his approval 14 before making any substantial discovery decisions." (Id. ¶ 12.) To support that 15 assertion, Mr. Garcia submits an excerpt from Pinnacle's interrogatory responses that 16 unequivocally identify Mr. Martinez as a "Responding Party." (Id. ¶ 12, Ex. 3.) 17 Despite Pinnacle's involvement in this action from the very beginning, it has not 18 sought removal at any point. (Id. ¶ 11.)

19 On February 8, 2016, Ms. Garcia filed her SAC, asserting ten causes of action 20 for: (1) failure to pay overtime wages; (2) failure to provide compliant meal periods; 21 (3) failure to authorize and permit rest periods; (4) failure to timely pay all wages due 22 during employment and upon separation of employment; (5) failure to provide 23 accurate itemized wage statements; (6) failure to reimburse all expenses incurred; (7) 24 representative claims under PAGA; (8) violation of California Business & 25 Professions Code § 17200 et seq.; (9) wrongful termination in violation of public 26 policy; and (10) unlawful retaliation. Specifically, Plaintiff asserts the first eight 27 causes of action on behalf of all class members and the California Labor and 28 Workforce Development Agency ("LDWA"). (SAC ¶¶ 182-87.) In an individual

1 capacity, Ms. Garcia asserts that Defendants wrongfully terminated her in violation 2 of public policy and unlawfully retaliated against her for complaining about unsafe 3 working conditions. (SAC ¶¶ 192-200, 209-14.)

4 In the notice of removal, Mr. Martinez asserts the basis for removal is diversity 5 jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d), the Class Action Fairness Act (“CAFA”).
 6 (Removal Notice ¶ 9.) Ms. Garcia now moves to remand based on, among other 7 things, a CAFA exception known as the “local controversy exception,” which 8 mandates federal courts to decline jurisdiction if certain conditions are met in cases 9 that are truly local in nature. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4). Mr. Martinez opposes.

11 II. LEGAL STANDARD

12 “Federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction.” Kokkonen v. Guardian Life 13 Ins. Co. of Am., 511 U.S. 375, 377 (1994). “They possess only that power authorized 14 by Constitution or a statute, which is not to be expanded by judicial decree.” Id.
 15 (internal citations omitted). “It is to be presumed that a cause lies outside this limited 16 jurisdiction and the burden of establishing the contrary rests upon the party asserting 17 jurisdiction.” Id. (internal citations omitted); see also Abrego Abrego v. The Dow 18 Chem. Co., 443 F.3d 676, 684 (9th Cir. 2006).

19 Consistent with the limited jurisdiction of federal courts, the removal statute is 20 strictly construed against removal jurisdiction. Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 21 (9th Cir. 1992); see also Sygenta Crop Prot. v. Henson, 537 U.S. 28, 32 (2002); 22 O’Halloran v. Univ. of Wash., 856 F.2d 1375, 1380 (9th Cir. 1988). “The strong 23 presumption against removal jurisdiction means that the defendant always has the 24 burden of establishing that removal is proper.” Gaus, 980 F.2d at 566; see also 25 Nishimoto v. Federman-Bachrach & Assoc., 903 F.2d 709, 712 n.3 (9th Cir. 1990); 26 O’Halloran, 856 F.2d at 1380. “Federal jurisdiction must be rejected if there is any 27 doubt as to the right of removal in the first instance.” Gaus, 980 F.2d at 566.

CAFA confers federal jurisdiction over class actions involving: (a) minimal diversity; (b) at least 100 putative class members; and (c) at least $5 million in controversy, inclusive of attorneys' fees but exclusive of interest and costs. 28 U.S.C. §§ 1223(d)(2), (5). CAFA maintains the historical rule that places the burden on the removing party to establish a prima facie case of removal jurisdiction. Serrano v. 180 Connect, Inc., 478 F.3d 1018, 1020 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing Abrego, 443 F.3d at 684-85). However, when a plaintiff moving to remand seeks to rely on a statutory exception to CAFA, the burden shifts to the plaintiff to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the exception applies. Serrano, 478 F.3d at 1022.

III. DISCUSSION

CAFA's local-controversy exception is intended to identify a controversy that "uniquely affects a particular locality and to ensure that it is decided by a state rather than a federal court." Bridewell-Sledge v. Blue Cross of Cal., 789 F.3d 923, 928 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting Evans, 449 F.3d at 1163-64)). CAFA's language favors federal jurisdiction over class actions, and its legislative history suggests that Congress intended the local-controversy exception to be a narrow one. Benko v. Quality Loan Serv. Corp., 789 F.3d 1111, 1116 (9th Cir. 2015) (citing Evans v. Walter Indus. Inc., 449 F.3d 1159, 1163 (11th Cir. 2006)).

Under CAFA's local-controversy exception, a district court must decline to exercise jurisdiction if the following conditions are satisfied: (1) greater than two-thirds of the proposed class members are citizens of the State in which the action was originally filed; (2) at least one defendant is a defendant from whom significant relief is sought by the proposed class members, whose alleged conduct forms a significant basis for the claims asserted by the proposed class members, and who is a citizen of the State in which the action was originally filed; (3) the principal injuries resulting from the alleged conduct or any related conduct of each defendant were incurred in the State in which the action was originally filed; and (4) no similar class action has

1 been filed against any of the defendants in the preceding three years. 28 U.S.C. § 2 1332(d)(4)(A)(i)-(ii). The last two conditions are not disputed by Mr. Martinez.

3 The plaintiff bears the burden of showing by a preponderance of the evidence 4 that the local-controversy exception applies to the facts of a given case. Mondragon
 5 v. Capital One Auto Finance, 736 F.3d 880, 883 (9th Cir. 2013); Coleman v. Estes 6 Exp. Lines, Inc., 631 F.3d 1010, 1013 (9th Cir. 2011); Serrano, 478 F.3d at 1019. But 7 the burden of proof placed upon a plaintiff should not be exceptionally difficult to 8 bear, and district courts are permitted to make reasonable inferences from facts in 9 evidence in applying CAFA's local-controversy exception. Mondragon, 736 F.3d at 10 886. In this instance, Ms. Garcia must establish (1) that greater than two-thirds of the 11 proposed class members are citizens of California; and (2) at least one defendant is a 12 citizen of California from whom the members of the plaintiff class seek significant 13 relief and whose conduct forms a significant basis for the claims asserted in the SAC.
 14 See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)(i)(I)-(II).

15 Based on the following reasons, the Court finds that Ms. Garcia satisfies her 16 burden in establishing that the local-controversy exception applies to this case.

17 18 A. Class Member Citizenship

19 To avail herself of the local-controversy exception, Ms. Garcia must prove that 20 greater than two-thirds of the putative class members are California citizens. See 28 21 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)(i). The citizenship of the class is a question of fact and may 22 be established through evidence beyond the complaint. Coleman, 631 F.3d at 1015.
 23 Though plaintiffs may submit evidence for the court's consideration, they are not 24 required to submit multiple points of data probative of citizenship for each potential 25 class member, but rather plaintiffs "may rely on the presumption of continuing 26 domicile, which provides that, once established, a person's state of domicile 27 continues unless rebutted with sufficient evidence of change." Mondragon, 736 F.3d 28 at 886. That said, a plaintiff may also not simply rely on her own allegations that

1 greater than two-thirds of the plaintiff class are citizens of California to satisfy the 2 burden. Id. at 884 (“The statute does not say that remand can be based simply on a 3 plaintiff’s allegations [regarding citizenship] when they are challenged by the 4 defendant,” and “[a] complete lack of evidence does not satisfy the [preponderance 5 of the evidence] standard.”).

6 The Ninth Circuit has also observed that numerous courts treat a person’s 7 residence as prima facie evidence of the person’s domicile. Mondragon, 736 F.3d at 8 886 (citations omitted). The court in Mondragon admonished that there “must 9 ordinarily be at least some facts in evidence from which the district court may make 10 findings regarding class members’ citizenship for purposes of CAFA’s local 11 controversy exception,” and explained that a “court should consider ‘the entire 12 record’ to determine whether evidence of residency can properly establish 13 citizenship.” Id. at 884, 886 (citing Preston v. Tenet Healthsystem Mem’l Med. Ctr.
14 Inc., 485 F.3d 793, 800 (5th Cir. 2007)).

15 Ms. Garcia presents evidence pertaining to a 17.2% sample of the total putative 16 class. (Pl.’s Mot. 19.) According to Ms. Garcia, Pinnacle only provided access to 17 such information for an 18% random sample of the putative class, or about 461 class 18 members. (Roysdon Decl. ¶ 14.) Of those 461 class members, 439 consented to the 19 release of their names and contact information. (Id. ¶ 15.) Out of the 439 putative 20 class members’ information provided, 97% have mailing addresses in California. (Id.
21 ¶ 16, Ex. 4.) Relying on the assumption that the mailing addresses of the employees 22 serve as a proxy for their citizenship, Ms. Garcia argues that it can be reasonably 23 inferred from the evidence that greater than two-thirds of the total class are citizens 24 of California. The Court agrees. From the sampling method used by Ms. Garcia, the 25 Court concludes that she satisfies the two-thirds class-citizenship threshold.

Ms. Garcia's position is further supported by allegations in the SAC. Other district courts have found that if a complaint asserts that a case is brought only on behalf of California plaintiffs, the presumption that greater than two-thirds of the class are California citizens arises. See Flores v. Chevron Corp., No. 2:11-cv-02551-JHN-FMOx, 2011 WL 2160420, at *4 (C.D. Cal. May 31, 2011); Quesada v. Herb Thyme Farms, Inc., No. CV 11-00016 ODW(SSx), 2011 WL 1195952, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 28, 2011); Rotenberg v. Brain Research Labs, LLC, No. C-09-2914 SC, 2009 WL 2984722, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 15, 2009). It appears the only relevant places of employment for the potential class members are in California, as all claims invoke only California law and the class is limited to "[a]ll current and former employees [of Defendants] in the state of California." (SAC ¶¶ 87-92 (emphasis added).) While the class definitions could have been clearer, the most reasonable reading of the complaint is that Ms. Garcia, by including "in the state of California" in all five class definitions, intended to limit the claims to California plaintiffs. (SAC ¶¶ 87-92). In the absence of contrary evidence, it is reasonable to infer that greater than two-thirds of the putative class members live and intend to remain in California.

In his opposition, Mr. Martinez fails to provide any evidence rebutting Ms. Garcia's reasonable inference that she satisfies the two-thirds class-citizenship threshold based on her sampling method. Instead, Mr. Martinez attacks Ms. Garcia's definition of citizenship, specifically that she conflates "citizenship" with "residence." (Def.'s Opp'n 22.) However, that attack lacks merit because numerous courts have treated a person's residence as prima facie evidence of citizenship. Mondragon, 736 F.3d at 886.

Relying on Mondragon and Hart v. Rick's NY Cabaret International, Inc., 967 F. Supp. 2d 955 (S.D.N.Y. 2014), Mr. Martinez also argues that Ms. Garcia offers evidence of where the class members resided four years ago, but fails to provide any evidence of where the class members resided at the time of removal. (Def.'s Opp'n 22-23.) However, plaintiffs "may rely on the presumption of continuing domicile,

1 which provides that, once established, a person's state of domicile continues unless 2 rebutted with sufficient evidence of change." Mondragon, 736 F.3d at 886. This 3 presumption has been widely accepted, including by the Ninth Circuit. See 4 Mondragon, 736 F.3d at 885-86 (citing Lew v. Moss, 797 F.2d 747, 751 (9th Cir.
 5 1986); Anderson v. Watts, 138 U.S. 694, 706 (1891); Hollinger v. Home State Mut.
 6 Ins. Co., 654 F.3d 564, 571 (5th Cir. 2011) (per curiam)). Despite having possession 7 of relevant information pertaining to the putative class members' residences, Mr.
 8 Martinez has not offered any such evidence.

9 Thus, Mr. Martinez's reliance on Hart is misplaced. In Hart, the defendant 10 provided specific examples of class members who had left New York since the 11 relevant time period. 967 F. Supp. 2d. at 964-65. Here, Mr. Martinez merely suggests 12 the possibility that employees either left California or never resided there to begin 13 with, but fails to produce any evidence to actually support that suggestion. (See Def.'s 14 Opp'n 22.) That suggestion is tantamount to pure speculation, which is wholly 15 inadequate to rebut the presumption regarding the class' citizenship. Thus, the 16 putative class members who had residential addresses in California four years ago 17 are presumed to have continued to be domiciled in California. Mondragon, 736 F.3d 18 at 885-86.

19 Consequently, Ms. Garcia successfully demonstrates by a preponderance of 20 the evidence that greater than two-thirds of the putative class members are citizens 21 of California. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)(i).

22 23 B. Significant-Defendant Requirement

24 The local-controversy exception also requires that at least one defendant be a 25 citizen of the state where the action was originally filed. 28 U.S.C. § 26 1332(d)(4)(A)(II)(cc). The local defendant must be a defendant "from whom 27 significant relief is sought by members of the plaintiff class" and "whose alleged 28 conduct forms a significant basis for the claims asserted by the proposed plaintiff

1 class.” 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)(II)(aa)-(bb). In deciding whether “significant relief 2 is sought” from a defendant who is a citizen of the state in which the suit is filed and 3 whether the defendant’s “alleged conduct forms a significant basis for the claims 4 asserted by the plaintiff class,” the district court may look only to the complaint.
 5 Coleman, 631 F.3d at 1015.

6 For purposes of diversity jurisdiction, a limited liability company is a citizen 7 of every state of which its members are citizens. Johnson v. Columbia Properties 8 Anchorage, LP, 437 F.3d 894, 899 (9th Cir. 2006).

9 10 1. Task Ventures’ Citizenship

11 Ms. Garcia asserts that Task Ventures, a limited liability company, holds 12 California citizenship because its only two members, Terry Klinker and his wife, 13 Susan Klinker, have lived in San Diego since 2000 and there is no evidence that they 14 are no longer citizens of California. (Roysdon Decl. ¶¶ 17-18, Exs. 5-6.) Mr. Martinez 15 responds, arguing that Ms. Garcia failed to show that Terry Klinker was a citizen of 16 California at the time of removal. (Def.’s Opp’n 25.) In support of his argument, Mr.
 17 Martinez directs the Court to a March 2015 email from Terry Klinker to Pinnacle’s 18 payroll coordinator asking her to send all future correspondence to their new address 19 in Georgia. (Id.; McCarter Decl. ¶ 17, Ex. B.) However, given the undisputed fact 20 that the Klinkers were California citizens for nearly 15 years prior to Terry Klinker 21 informing Pinnacle of his new address in Georgia, the Court finds that Mr. Martinez’s 22 evidence, without more, is insufficient to establish Terry Klinker is no longer a 23 citizen of California or intends to remain in Georgia. For example, Mr. Martinez 24 offered no evidence the Klinker sold their home in San Diego or that intend to remain 25 in Georgia indefinitely. See, e.g., Lew v. Moss, 797 F.2d 747, 752 (9th Cir. 1986).

26 Further supporting the argument that Task Ventures is a California citizen is 27 the fact that Task Ventures is organized under the laws of California with its principle 28 place of business being California. (SAC ¶ 14.) Therefore, Ms. Garcia meets her burden to demonstrate that Task Ventures is also a citizen of California. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)(II)(cc).

2. Significant Basis for Ms. Garcia's Claims

In determining whether Task Ventures' alleged conduct forms a "significant basis" for Ms. Garcia's claims, this Court may only look to the allegations in the SAC and may not consider extrinsic evidence for purposes of the local-controversy exception. Coleman, 627 F.3d at 1015. Whether the "significant basis" condition is met requires a "substantive analysis comparing the local defendant's alleged conduct to the alleged conduct of all the other, non-local defendants." Benko, 789 F.3d at 1118 (quoting Kaufman v. Allstate New Jersey Ins. Co., 561 F.3d 144, 156 (3d Cir. 2009)). In the SAC, Ms. Garcia alleges that Task Ventures engaged in the exact same wage-and-hour violations as the other defendants. The SAC further alleges that Task Ventures employed members of the plaintiff class during the relevant period and violated California law in a number of ways previously mentioned with respect to those employees. Furthermore, Ms. Garcia seeks damages equally from all defendants. These allegations sufficiently satisfy the "significant basis" requirement. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)(II)(bb).

Likewise, whether Ms. Garcia seeks "significant relief" from Task Ventures also requires a comparison of the relief sought from Task Ventures to the relief sought from the other, non-local defendants. Benko, 789 F.3d at 1119. A "defendant from whom significant relief is sought" does not mean a "defendant from whom significant relief may be obtained." Coleman, 631 F.3d at 1015 (citing Coffey v. Freeport McMoran Copper & Gold, 581 F.3d 1240, 1245 (10th Cir. 2009)). "[N]othing in CAFA's language indicates Congress intended district courts to wade into the factual swamp of assessing the financial viability of a defendant as part of a preliminary consideration." Id. In Coleman, the plaintiffs alleged that both the in-state defendant and the out-of-state defendant violated California law and sought damages equally

1 from both. 631 F.3d at 1013, 1020. The court found those allegations sufficient to 2 satisfy the “significant relief” requirement from the in-state defendant. Id. at 1020.
 3 Additionally, in Benko, the court held that claims for general damages, punitive 4 damages, and equitable relief were sufficient to show that the plaintiffs claim 5 “significant relief” from the in-state defendant. 789 F.3d at 1119.

6 Considering the allegations in the SAC, Ms. Garcia sufficiently alleges that 7 members of the class have suffered harm as a result Defendants’ violations of the 8 California Labor Code and IWC Wage Order. See Coleman, 627 F.3d at 1015. While 9 Ms. Garcia did not quantify the alleged damages, she seeks damages from all 10 defendants equally for their alleged wrongful conduct.² These damages appear to be 11 the same whether caused by Task Ventures or another defendant. While Task 12 Ventures’ employees may constitute a smaller percentage of the total class, nothing 13 on the face of the SAC suggests Task Ventures is a nominal defendant or that relief
 14 from Task Ventures would be insignificant.³

15 Furthermore, the SAC seeks injunctive relief and restitution against Task 16 Ventures. (SAC ¶¶ 197(g)-(h).) There is nothing in the SAC to suggest either that the 17 injunctive relief and/or restitution is itself insignificant, or that Task Ventures would 18 be incapable of complying with an injunction or restitution order.

19 Therefore, Ms. Garcia also carries her burden with respect to the “significant 20 relief” requirement to the local-controversy exception to CAFA. See 28 U.S.C. § 21 1332(d)(4)(A)(II)(aa).

22
 23 ² In the SAC, Ms. Garcia specifically seeks relief against all defendants for general damages, 24 special damages, actual damages pursuant to Labor Code § 226(e), liquidated damages in an amount 25 equal to the wages unlawfully paid and interest thereon, reasonable attorney’s fees, statutory and civil penalties, injunctive relief, restitution, among other things. (See SAC ¶¶ 197(a)-(r).)

26 ³ The Court declines to consider evidence of Task Ventures’ financial problems for two 27 reasons: (1) the Court must only rely on the face of the SAC; and (2) evidence of Task Ventures’ 28 financial condition is irrelevant to determining whether it is a defendant from whom significant relief is sought. See Coleman, 631 F.3d 1015 (stating that a “defendant from whom significant relief is sought” does not mean a “defendant from whom significant relief may be obtained.”).

1 IV. CONCLUSION & ORDER

2 In light of the foregoing, the Court finds that the local-controversy exception 3 to CAFA applies to this case.⁴ See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4); see also Benko, 789 F.3d 4 at 1116 (“If the statutory conditions for the application of [CAFA’s] local controversy 5 exception are met, a district court is required to remand the class action back to the 6 originating state court.”). Accordingly, the Court GRANTS Ms. Garcia’s motion to 7 remand, and REMANDS this action to the San Diego Superior Court.
